For the first time the artist Raphaella Vogel presents an exhibition in Mexico! Her work is called I have no questions, only answers, an exhibition at the Tamayo Museum that includes video projections, sound and even dinosaur sculptures.

The exhibition consists of three installations. The first is a question mark that emits music; it is surrounded by bronze velociraptor sculptures that are doing a dance.

Also, there is a work of six paintings that present artistic references from various perspectives. While the third piece is an audiovisual projection made by the artist, in addition to a sculpture made with harvest rakes.

This exhibition reflects on the difficulties, challenges and facets of artistic production. Please note that this is a temporary exhibition and you will be able to visit it until July 6, 2025.
